Mindfulness: Why Attention Matters

Presented by Craig Hassed | Wednesday 10 September 2014

This workshop will explore the science, practice and philosophy of mindfulness with a particular focus on child health and development, education and practitioner performance and wellbeing. The first half will be an interactive presentation on the background, evidence and principles of mindfulness and the second half will explore the application of mindfulness based practices for personal and professional use. A series of mindfulness exercises will be practiced, and the principles of mindfulness-based therapies will be explored. There will be plenty of time for questions and discussion.

The objectives of this seminar are to:

- To understand the effect of stress on health, performance, learning and development
- To understand the role of mindfulness in managing stress and improving health
- To understand the role of mindfulness in education and child development
- To be able to practice mindfulness meditation
- To be able to apply mindfulness-based cognitive strategies in personal and professional life

Suitable Audience:

- Carers & workers from foster, residential, permanent, adoptive & kinship care
- Family service workers • Child protection workers • Case managers
- Mental health professionals • Student welfare / wellbeing professionals
- Teachers / teacher's aide • Therapists • Counsellors • Psychologists
- Social workers • Youth Justice
